Department of Sanskrit (General Course)

An undergraduate Sanskrit general course focuses on imparting essential language skills and cultural insights. Students develop proficiency in reading, writing, and speaking Sanskrit while mastering grammatical rules and literary analysis. The course emphasizes translation abilities and cultivates awareness of the cultural and historical contexts within classical Sanskrit texts. Proficiency in Sanskrit grammar, translation, and literary analysis can lead to opportunities in translation services, content creation, and language teaching. Additionally, graduates may find roles in cultural preservation organizations, museums, or heritage institutions or in religious studies. Studying culture as well as Sanskrit literature is very necessary even in today's society to shape our life structure.
